CONNELLVILLE GIRL
SUES FOR $50,000 AS
DAMAGE TO REPUTE*Rose Drew or Condi Acts
Against Pittsburg Efficiency
Morals Commission.*RESULT OF RECENT ARREST

Young Woman Was Employed, Several Years Ago, in the Family of Dr. J. C. McClenathan, as Domestic and Nurse; Local Reputation is Good.

The Pittsburg Efficiency Morals Commission has run against a snafu. Suit was filed today by Rose Condi, or Drew, of Connellville, to recover damages of $50,000 from Dr. Frederick A. Rhodes, George Sobel, members of the commission, and Police Chief John W. Barry on charges of false arrest and conspiracy to ruin her reputation.

The girl, who was an artist's model at the Carnegie Technical school before her arrest, was "trapped" says the bill of complaint, by a man, (Dr. Rhodes), who called her up on the telephone, claiming to be from her home town, Connellville.

The Morals Efficiency Commission was organized for the purpose of rectifying the morals of Pittsburg, some time ago, and works in connection with city officials.

Voluntary search on the part of those interested in the case today resulted in the discovery that a Rose Condi was employed as a nurse, several years ago, in the family of Dr. J. C. McClenathan, South Pittsburg street. The girl's parents, who are Italian, live near Vanderbilt. Miss Condi has a crippled foot. It is said she is about 20 years of age and has an excellent reputation while here.

HUSBAND SOUGHT FOR ATTACK ON WIFE IN DOWNTOWN STREET

George Jackson, of Connellville Township, Accused of Cutting His Spouse.

For an alleged attack upon and slandering of his wife on the side of the head and neck with an instrument on Pittsburg street, last night, George Jackson, of Connellville township, is wanted by Connellville officers. A warrant for his arrest was issued by Justice of the Peace Lawrence Donegan. Jackson, it was thought, left Connellville immediately after the assault.

Jackson had been arrested, Thursday, for alleged threats to kill his wife and dynamite her home. He was let go by Justice of the Peace Donegan on payment of costs and promise to stay away from Mrs. Jackson. The alleged trouble began at the Jackson home on the Connellville-Mt. Pleasant Pike. According to the story told by Mrs. Jackson, her husband refused to pay rent for their house and asked for a divorce. She said he followed her, entered the new home and attacking her. He was arrested by Constable J. W. Mitchell. Mrs. Jackson came down last night, with blood streaming from her ear and neck she appeared before the Justice of the Peace and declared her husband had assaulted her openly on the street. The flow of blood was stopped and a surgery of the peace charge preferred.

2,500 Men Out Due to Car Failure.

The shortage of men is not the only handicap of the coal operators of Cambria county. The shortage of cars is perhaps even more serious. Every one of the 13 mines on the Portage branch, where about 2,500 men are employed has been closed because no cars are to be had.

WILSON TO CALL EXTRA MEET
OF CONGRESS BY APRIL 15

President-Elect Plans Revision of the Tariff at Extraordinary Session;

Sails for Bermuda.

President-elect Woodrow Wilson announced last night at New York that immediately after his inauguration next March he will call an extraordinary session of Congress to convene not later than April 15 for the purpose of revising the tariff.

The President-elect was scheduled to sail for Bermuda at 2 o'clock this afternoon for a vacation and will return December 16. To act at rest in the meantime, speculation as to what he would do with regard to tariff revision, he issued the following statement:

"I shall call Congress together in extraordinary session not later than April 15. I shall do this not only because I think that the pledges of the party ought to be redeemed as promptly as possible, but also because I know it to be in the interest of business that all uncertainty as to what the particular items of tariff revision are to be should be removed as soon as possible."

Governor Wilson said most of the opinions he had received from public men seemed to favor an extra session. He had not intended to announce his intention so early, although he favored the idea of an extra session because the present arrangement would not bring the new Congress into session until 15 months after its election.

WILSON TO FIGHT TRUSTS

New Administration to Further Work
Began by President Taft.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Continuation of all the big anti-trust suits by the new Democratic administration along the same lines that had been followed by the Taft administration was predicted today. The new attorney general, according to authoritative information, will be confronted with a situation which will necessitate this policy for a year or more, or until such time as Congress can be induced to amend or add to the Sherman law.

A mass of information is in the Department of Justice files as to possible basis for many anti-trust suits, but they have not been begun because this department has neither the money nor the attorneys to undertake them. Moreover, no additional funds for prosecuting them will be expressed until the beginning of the next fiscal year, July 1st.

READY FOR HARD FOOTBALL
FIGHT WITH M'KEESPORT HIGH

Connellville Squad Scheduled to Meet
Gridiron Tars on Fayette Field.

The hardest battle of the season on Fayette Field was scheduled for this afternoon, when the undefeated McKeesport High School eleven was scheduled to line up against the unbeaten Connellville High School team at 3 o'clock. McKeesport, with a record of four defeats and the Fifth Avenue High School, Pittsburg, is claiming the Western Pennsylvania scholastic championship and came in, this morning, determined to add the local High School to its string of victories.

The McKeesport players arrived at 10:40 o'clock and were quartered at the Hotel Royal. The visitors' lineup will be as follows: Fletcher, I. C.; Stephen, I. C.; Post, I. C.; Wood, C. Wolf; Faltentstein, T. C.; Crummett, or Lemon, L. C.; Hardesty, R. C.; Richards or Parker, G. B.; Tiddle or Reider, H. C.; Hodgson, R. C.; Capt. Jones, I. C. Connellville's lineup, according to Coach R. H. Smith, will be about the same as last Saturday's with the exception of Jones, who has quitted. Miller or McPartland will take his place. Coach Smith has drilled his pupils hard for today's game, determined to stop, if possible, McKeesport's hoped-for scoring machine. Fletcher, of McKeesport, grabbed two forward passes in the game last Saturday, making big gains. Hardesty, it is reported, can punt 50 yards. The locals will keep close watch on those two.

After the game, members of the McKeesport squad will be honor guests at the third annual banquet of the Connellville High School eleven, in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium.

Next Saturday will see football rivalry in Fayette county at fever heat, when Connellville High will play Uniontown High on the latter's field. That game will be called at 2:45 o'clock. Connellville High will go to Uniontown, accompanied by several hundred rooters. Several thousand are expected to witness the contest. Special police protection will be provided. A. U. officials will have charge of the game. The net gate receipts will be divided.

Coach B. B. Smith and Superintendent of Schools Stanley P. Ashe met representatives of J. Scott, Principal of Uniontown, and Charles H. Butler, of Uniontown High, here, Thursday night, and made arrangements for the Connellville-Uniontown High game. Members of the Connellville High School Alumni attended an open meeting yesterday evening at 7:30 o'clock to arouse enthusiasm and increase interest in the game this afternoon.

CENTRAL BASKETBALL LOOKS FOR OHIO TOWNS TO FILL GAP

President Parsons Goes After Youngstown, Akron and East Liverpool Promoters.

To close the gap in the Central Basketball League situation, caused by the jumping of Johnstown stars to the Do Not team of the Eastern League, after promising to go to Southside, President J. H. Parsons left today for Youngstown, Akron, and East Liverpool, Ohio. He will endeavor to interest sport promoters there with the hope of completing a four-club circuit. Fogarty, Newman and Keenan, star trio of Johnstown's championship team last year, did not go three days ago. Their transfer to Southside was not approved. Because Johnstown's basketball plans were sidetracked, Greenburg fans made no effort to place a team in the league.

In reply to a conjecture as to the Southside situation, Manager M. A. Coffey, of the local five today said: "I can get players and John Fraud should be able to do the same." Mr. Coffey said the league race would be underway probably in a week depending upon President Parsons' success in his quest of a fourth team.

The Cokers will play an exhibition game at Uniontown Monday night, and Uniontown will come here for another exhibition battle, Wednesday night.

Huddled in a seat as though crushed by the terrible blow, sat the weeping daughter, her eyes red from weeping.

COKERS' FIVE TRIM SEARS
UNIONTOWN BRAVES, 42-31

Connellville Basketball Players Defeat Opponents in Exciting Contest.

Basketball fans who failed to attend last night's battle between the Cokers and Sears Uniontown "Braves" on the West Side floor, missed a contest replete with Central League frills and finishes. The struggle was neck and neck the last few minutes of play, when the Connellville galloped past the time-consuming, a victory by a score of 42 to 31.

A fair sized but enthusiastic crowd saw the clash. The locals got a lead of eight points before Sears was able to toss one foul. That Uniontown began climbing as Connellville gathered a few points; and, when the song ended the first half, the score stood 13 to 17, with the locals on the long end.

Uniontown tied the score at the end of the first five minutes in the second half. After that Connellville's score was never reached. "Hilly" Kummer was the star of the night, tossing five baskets from field and throwing 18 fouls out of 23 tries. Bogie and Sears each threw three goals from field, and Sears tossed 13 fouls in 18 tries. Brady played a good game with four field goals, and Dark's one shot was a fancy heave. While Brown, local amateur, did not register a basket, he put up a good game.

The score:

Connellville, 42.	Uniontown, 31.
Kummer	10
Bogie	5
Dark	5
Cavanaugh	5
Brady	5
Brown	5
Field goals—Kummer 6, Dark 3, Cavanaugh 2, Brady 4, Bogie 3, Ryan 1, Powell 2, Sears 3. Foul goals—Kummer 18 out of 23; Sears 13 out of 18. Referee—Horlock.

SURVEYING LEADS TO RUMOR
OF NEW B. & O. BRANCH LINE

Projected Road May Strike Near Connellville With Coal Development as Object.

Surveyors are at work near Elm Grove, W. Va., covering a route between that place and Cameron. It was stated from a reliable source that they were surveying a route between Cameron and Pennsylvania points for the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, which intended tapping the rich coal fields of Marion and Greene counties that are still undeveloped.

The corps of surveyors has for several days been surveying in and around Cameron. The main line of the Baltimore & Ohio runs through Cameron, and for some time past this company has been contemplating opening the rich coal fields of northern and eastern Marshall county and the eastern section of Ohio county. Just where the line will branch to is not yet definitely known, but in all probability it will connect with its Pittsburgh branch somewhere near Connellville or Washington.

Marshall county, at the points mentioned, is undeveloped with several rich coal veins. For the last two years parties have been buying up this land and now it is practically all controlled by big combines, and they are anxious to open it. These parties have been urging the B. & O. to open a branch line through this section, and it is generally thought work on the new branch will soon be started.

The Monongahela Traction Company is also soon to extend its line from Martinburg to Cameron. It was reported that the new parties who have purchased the Wheeling Traction Lines intended opening a line to Cameron. The Wheeling parties are the West Penn interests.

REA BEGAN WORK HERE

President-Elect, P. R. R., Chief Engineer in Connellville, 1875.

Samuel Rea, the new president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was born in Hollidaysburg, Blair county, September 21, 1856. He joined the surveying corps headed by James McCrea, the retiring president, in 1871.

From 1875 to 1877 he was assistant engineer in the construction of the Point bridge which at present spans the mouth of the Monongahela river. His work on this structure attracted attention and upon completion of the bridge he was appointed assistant engineer of the Monongahela and Lake Erie Railroad which then was under construction. He remained with that railroad until construction was finished.

From 1880 to 1883 Rea was engineer in charge of surveys in Westmoreland county and the revision of a building of the Western Pennsylvania Railroad.

James McCrea who steps down from the presidency of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was born in Philadelphia, May 1, 1846. After his preparation for a profession he became a railroad man in the service of the Connellville & Southern Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

BULGARS ROUT TURK ARMY

Cholera Ravages Hanks of Victims, Who Advance Upon Constantinople.

United Press Telegram.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—The bulk of the Sultan's army has been driven back until it was within 12 miles of Constantinople today, according to information from Sofia.

Stories differ as to the nature of the resistance the Turks were making. The Bulgarians maintained they were meeting little opposition. The Constantinople version was that a life and death struggle was in progress, the opposing forces, in many instances, fighting hand-to-hand. It seems clear, at any rate, that the Bulgarians were still advancing. It was expected here that they would enter the Turkish capital in a day or two.

From Bucarest came news that cholera was spreading rapidly among the Bulgarian troops. The Bulgarians denied it, but as they had entered a district where it has been raging for days among the Turks, the Bucharest story was considered the likeliest.

Crucible Co. Gives $1,000,000 Job.

The Altona Coal & Coke Company, which has two mines at the Little town formerly called Baker's Mines, not far from Ashville, expects to charge 100 coke ovens that have been idle for two years. The ovens are now being repaired and they will be put into operation just as fast as these repairs are completed. All will probably be in use by the first of the year. Only six ovens are burning at the present time. B. E. Phillips, General Manager of the Altona Coal & Coke Company, said his company is employing 300 men, who are busy every day, and that a couple of hundred more men could be used.

SOUTH CONNELLVILLE COUNCIL CUTS POWER
OF BURGESS SAM LEE*Executive Shorn of Police
Appointments and Right to Sign Vouchers.*SPECIAL MEETING FOR PURPOSE

Rupture Between Head of Borough and Governing Body Widened by Reversal of Veto Relating to Certain Charges for Hucksters.

South Connellville Council has robbed Burgess Samuel Lee of several powers by amending huckster, police and finance ordinances and awaits his decision upon the changes.

In a special session, Thursday night, Burgess Lee's Socialistic objections were ignored, and Council amended the proposed huckster ordinance to include a tax of $1.50 per month, $1 per week, or 50 cents per day.

The huckster ordinance, with a tax of $1.50 a month, was passed at the regular October meeting, but Burgess Lee sent it back to Council. He said his party had denounced it as unjust to the majority of the citizens. But Lee's veto was not permitted to stand.

The power of suspending and appointing police was taken from the Burgess and placed with Council. The latter body held that with the Burgess power to appoint after suspension by Council, conflicts occurred.

The ordinance on drawing orders for payments was amended to exclude signatures of the Burgess and to include only those of the President and Secretary of Council.

J. W. Miller was appointed member of the South Connellville Board of Health to succeed Charles McClintock.

SEARCH FOR TWO AGED MEN, FLYDELL AND MEENICK, FAILS

Son of Former Gives Up Long Hunt; Springfield Farmers Look for Last.

After searching almost three weeks for his father, Joseph Flydell, 75 years, whose home is near Lescanier No. 1, John Flydell, a son, today gave up all hope. Fear that the aged man wandered away and died in an unfrequented place was expressed by the son.

"I have almost ended my hunt," said John Flydell. "I have no clue to my father's whereabouts, and I fear I shall never discover him alive. Of course, if I should hear of him, I would take up the hunt again."

A story of an aged man who tallied with the description of Joseph Flydell, totting along the roads near Springfield and into the mountains, led John Flydell and Samuel Harper, a friend, on a long hunt this week. Along a stretch of 12 miles, farmers said they had seen an aged man with side whiskers and a cane. Then the track was lost.

Flydell was seen last on Main street here. On election day, a man of his appearance was sighted in Tan Yard Hollow, east of Connellville. A girl watched him vanish behind a building. Aided by a reproduction of a photograph of the missing man, which appeared in The Courier a few days ago, a number of persons reported having seen him.

Alarmed by the disappearance of G. Meenick, an aged man, farmers near Springfield have conducted a search. Meenick, about 75 years old, is said to have wandered away suddenly from the home of Richard Murray, about three miles from Springfield. The hunt has been on for the last three days. No trace of Meenick was reported this afternoon.

HEADACHY, BILIOUS, UPSET? 'CASCARETS'

It's Your Inactive Liver and Bowels—You Need Cascarets Sure.

You're bilious, you have a throbbing sensation in your head, a bad taste in your mouth, your eyes burn, your skin is yellow, with dark rings under your eyes; your lips are parched. No wonder you feel ugly, mean and ill-tempered. Your system is full of bile not properly passed off, and what you need is a cleaning up inside. Don't continue being a bilious nuisance to yourself and those who love you, and don't resort to harsh physics that irritate and injure. Remember that most disorders of the stomach, liver and intestines can be quickly cured by morning with gentle, thorough Cascarets—they work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your liver and bowels clean; stomach sweet and your head clear for months. Children love to take Cascarets, because they taste good and never gripe or sicken.—Advertisement.

THE INDIAN CREEK COAL CASE.

The notice served on the owners and operators of Indian Creek Valley coal situated about the dam of the Mountain Water Company, by the officers of that company, warning such owners and operators not to discharge or permit to be discharged any mine discharge into the stream or its tributaries, or to make any new openings which might drain into the same, was a rather startling proposition to the Indian Creek Valley mine owners, who are for the most part operating small custom banks which have been open for some years.

The question involved is a wide one, covering apparently the coal regions of the whole State of Pennsylvania. The raising of the question by a subsidiary corporation of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company was either done without proper consideration of the consequences, or in the hope that an exception could be made of the Indian Creek Valley coal field, a hope that would in any event seem rather desperate.

The question first came up in the anthracite region some fifty years ago. Suit was brought against a coal company by a riparian owner for polluting the water of a stream. There was no statute bearing upon the matter, and there has never been any enacted, although as late as 1905 there was an attempt to pass such a bill. The plaintiff sued his claim upon the common law making which requires the owner to use his own property as not to injure that of another. After lengthy litigation and exhaustive argument, in the lower and higher courts, it was finally determined that the old rule must be modified to the end that one of the State's greatest industries, upon which the people were all more or less dependent, should not be destroyed even though the stream was contaminated with sulphur drainage from the mines put to the inconvenience of purifying the water themselves on seeking other sources of supply. That ruling has been affirmed in other cases and stands as the law of Pennsylvania.

In the case of Sanderson, Lackawanna county, 1885, the Supreme Court said: "One operating a coal mine in the ordinary and usual manner may upon his own lands discharge or pump the water which percolates into his mine into a stream which forms the natural drainage of the basin in which the mine is situated, although the quantity of the water may thereby be increased and its quality so affected as to render it really unfit for domestic purposes by the lower riparian owners."

The use and enjoyment of a stream of pure water for domestic purposes by the lower riparian owners, who purchased their land, built their houses and laid out their grounds before the opening of the coal mine, the coal water from which rendered the stream entirely useless for domestic purposes, must be considered as giving way to the interests of the community in order to permit the development of the natural resources of the country, and to make possible the mining and the better business of mining coal.

The most profitable freight business the Pennsylvania railroad has today is its coal and coke traffic. It is not hard to see that the railroad, in its effort to get on the side of the coal and coke traffic, is not far from being a party to the violation of the law. The railroad's interest in the coal and coke traffic is not far from being a party to the violation of the law.

But here the railroad company will encounter another difficulty. The water company places the Indian creek water over the lines of the Pennsylvania railroad and into numerous streams throughout Western Pennsylvania, and in doing so diverts the water from the natural course and channels which have been established by nature. An illegal act is a poor foundation for a plea for the modification or abrogation of an existing rule of law.

The theory that the notice was served on the Indian Creek Valley coal owners for the willful purpose of depressing the value of their lands amounts to no more than an unworthy suspicion. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company would hardly be itself to such a crooked deal. If, however, any such purpose did exist, it is evident that it has failed to be effective. The coal land owners refused to be bluffed. They will hold their lands at present values and they will continue to operate the coal as heretofore and to open it at pleasure.

It is difficult to understand why the Pennsylvania Railroad Company spent millions of dollars to acquire the Indian creek water in defiance of the law against diversion and in utter disregard of the inevitable pollution of the waters by the opening of the coal. The diversion question has not been raised and perhaps it might have been just as well if the mining question had been left alone.

What the Pennsylvania Railroad Company should have done was to have bought this coal and all the surface land in the neighborhood of the stream when they built the water plant.

earning the work of the heavy prophet whose deliverance have for well-nigh a century been gospel to the Democrats of Fayette county. The Genius of Liberty has at last broken its silence, and since the election has actually been printing editorials. From the way it has turned its back and chanted psalms of victory for the last week a reader who was not familiar with its course during the campaign might be led into the erroneous belief that it had actually supported the party that won.

No one envies the Genius the slightest particle of its present exultation but the joy might have been a little more unconfined had the organ contributed even in a small degree to the result.

Now that the fever of politics has subsided and the clamor of the candidates has faded some excellent and well-meaning citizens are wondering whether they didn't make a mistake. If they must know later, we hope it will not be unpleasantly.

The Uniontown press seems to be elated over the rumored establishment of owl train service between Pittsburgh and Uniontown via Conneltsville and Uniontown. The Union Supply Company Stores Handle Only Specials.

Take our shoe departments for instance: Every pair we handle is made especially for us, and orders are given the manufacturers months in advance. We have already placed our orders for shoes for our next spring business. Think of that! SIX months in advance! The fall and winter shoes we are selling you now, were contracted for almost a year ago; they were bought when the market was low; an average of 10c per pair less than we can buy the same goods for today and you, our customers, are getting the benefit of it. Now remember, every pair of shoes we have for men, for women, for children, even down to the tiniest tad's shoes, are made especially for us according to our specifications. THAT IS WHY WE GUARANTEE THEM without any hesitation. That is one reason why we know that you are getting the best shoes that can be produced; that is why you can wear a Union Supply Company shoe so much longer than the goods any other dealer puts out. We want to call special attention to the extraordinary good values in men's working shoes for engineers, tipplemen, yardmen, roadmen in mines, haulers, pumpers, miners, etc. Everybody knows that mine work is hard on shoes; sulphur is particularly hard on them, yet we are selling a class of shoes that lasts six months, nine months and even a year, continuous wear, at this work. We want also to call your attention to our very excellent shoes for boys, neck-a-bouts, everyday play or work shoes; good fitting; good wearing; medium priced. We can say the same for the girls. For the women, we also have very desirable styles, specially made for our trade, good fitting, good wearing shoes, and moderate in price. The very large quantity we sell is the best evidence in the world, that our goods are alright.

Union Supply Company

Special Goods; Specially Made

Our furniture departments just now are overflowing with all sorts of staples and novelties; made especially for our trade. We can outfit your house completely from kitchen to attic; dining room; library; parlor; bedroom furniture; from the lowest grade to the most expensive. It doesn't cost a large amount of money to outfit a house comfortably; really it is surprising what a nice class of furniture and other household goods you can get from the Union Supply Company at moderate prices. Many people from the surrounding towns and farmers in the vicinity of our stores buy furniture from us; often we equip new houses complete, and every time our customers are quite sure they are saving money. From The Weekly Courier.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 15.—New high prices have been recorded on contract furnace coke for next year. A contract has just been closed for about 10,000 tons a month over the first half at $3.50, while another contract has been closed for delivery over the whole year at $3. These are now high prices on this movement, and are above the prices commonly regarded of late as representing the market in the absence of fresh contracts. It is possible that slightly lower prices might be accepted by some operators, but probably not more than 25 cents less at the outside. The furnace coke not yet covered are decidedly averse to paying the prices just mentioned, but operators appear to be very firm, and seem entirely content to wait. The steel works are slightly more disposed to pay the prices than the merchant furnaces. The latter are probably waiting for a further advance in pig iron, which is predicted. An advance of 50 cents in pig iron would probably justify paying a similar advance on coke and as the pig iron market has been moving lately another 50-cent advance would be no remarkable thing.

Prompt furnace coke has readily brought $4, no sales being reported in the week at any lower price, for standard grade. In several instances $4.10 has been paid and it is reported in some quarters that $4.25 has been done, but this would be exceptional, covering probably only a few cars absolutely required to prevent serious loss. In a very few cases furnace coke have had the best offer for a day or two, awaiting accumulation to their doors not seem to have been any regular banking.

Furnace coke at West Middletown, will blow in on December 1, on malleable and foundry grades of iron, and is understood to have secured a coke supply through next June.

Foundry coke has been equally strong with furnace. The market stands quiet as follows:

Prompt furnace	$4.00 to $4.25
Contract furnace, next half	$3.50 to $3.75
Contract furnace, year	$3.00 to $3.25
Prompt foundry	$3.50 to $3.75
Contract foundry, year	$3.00 to $3.25

The Pittsburgh Coal Company has issued a circular letter of instruction to its sales representatives, naming prices on coal contracts for the full year 1913, at $1.30 for mine-run and net, $1.40 for 1/2-inch, $1.50 for 1/4-inch, and $1.60 for 1/8-inch. The circular prices for the present year, which were deeply cut, were $1.22 1/2, $1.32 1/2, $1.42 1/2, and $1.52 1/2, respectively. The contract coal market is now opening, at $1.25, $1.35, $1.45 and 50 cents.

Basic iron has sold in large tonnages at $18, Valley, representing perhaps a slightly better market than was thought, as $16.25 was regarded as the minimum. At $18, Valley, the Jones & Laughlin Steel Company has bought 10,000 tons for spot shipment; the Cambria Steel Company, 25,000 tons for shipment November to April, inclusive; and the Republic Iron & Steel Company, 5,000 tons for shipment January to June, inclusive. Resemer has sold to the extent of over 75,000 tons, at $17, Valley, the residue market, for the Cambria and Youngstown steel companies, for various forward deliveries.

STEEL AND IRON TRADE SITUATION SHOWS GAINS

Big Increase in Steel Corporation's Unfilled Orders; Sharp Line Drawn at Midsummer.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—The American Metal Market and Daily Iron & Steel Report will review the iron and steel trade tomorrow as follows: "The gain of 1,042,374 tons during October in the Steel Corporation's unfilled tonnage was a surprise to the trade, the gain passing even the phenomenal gain of 912,505 tons shown for last December. The Corporation's policy lately has been one of reserve as to booking contracts for forward delivery, but of free booking at prices slightly lower than asked by independent, of tonnages against specific jobs like structural work and steel cars. In certain lines, in other words, the Corporation has picked its tonnage with considerable care, and has paid $1 to $2 a ton for the privilege. How profitable this particular course will prove depends entirely upon the way the market acts after the first quarter."

"On the whole, the booking of far forward tonnage is decreased, but this may be simply that the business has already been done. There is, however, quite a sharp line drawn at next midsummer, little business being done beyond that time, while up to it nearly all the business is now closed. Prices of steel products and pig iron are now practically stationary, but pig iron has been advancing almost up to the moment and it does not follow therefore that the pig iron advance is over."

"Hides of basic pig iron have been made in the Central West in the past week aggregating 45,000 tons, one for immediate shipment and another for shipment November to April and another for shipment January to June, all at $16, Valley, when the market had been regarded as quotable at $16.25. Resemer has sold to the extent of over 75,000 tons at $17, Valley, the old quotation."

"Throughout the steel industry there is heavier pressure for deliveries than at any previous time in this movement, and practically all the rule in most lines for any delivery this year. A development in the security of unfinished steel is the occasional sale of heats in the Central West at $24 to $25, maker's mill."

COKE AND RAILROAD DEVELOPMENTS OVER IN GREENE COUNTY

Six Large Operations Under Way or Getting Ready to Develop.

TWO WILL BE MINING PLANTS

Shipping Coal to By-Product Ovens at Their Steel Plants and Coking It There; Some Railroad Possibilities.

The development of the Greene county coking field is progressing steadily under the impetus of railroad connections, and the recently discovered fact that the Connellsville coke region cannot furnish enough coal to even under the incentive of the present high prices, to supply the demand; in fact, the demand cannot be supplied from anywhere, any district coke of any quality being eagerly sought at asking prices.

Work on the plant of the Poland Coke Company, being built to develop a tract of 1,100 acres in Cumberland township, is actively under way. The location of the building contractors, quite a town is springing up. Other Greene county developments are the two big operations of the Crucible Steel Company in Cumberland township near Kile's Landing; the located plant of J. G. Patterson at Homestead, about five miles east of Waynesburg; and the located plant of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company on Muddy creek. There is also the Midland operation, which will ship its coal down the river by boat to the company's steel plant at Midland, Pa., and there convert it into coke in by-product ovens. Coal is now being delivered by a steamer and a fleet of 50 barges.

The Republic company will probably ship their coal to their plant at Youngstown, O., and there convert it into coke by the same process. This company has just let a contract for the erection of an iron bridge, 55 Koppers by-product ovens, to be completed by the close of 1913, and it is announced that the company contemplates making its own coke in the future. This means its withdrawal from the merchant coke trade.

The railroad facilities of the Greene county field are as yet confined to the eastern boundary along the Monongahela river, but the available coking coal can readily be reached by short hauls. However, the proposed line through Greene county to Wheeling has not been abandoned, and its materialization at any time would be no surprise. Concerning the railroad possibilities of Greene county, the Waynesburg Republican says:

"The building of a railroad up Muddy creek to Waynesburg and on to Wheeling will be one of the advantages of the future. A railroad will be built up Muddy as far as Pentress, where it connects with the old Wabash survey, and over this will go to the Buckhannon & Northern. The Pennsylvania will build a road up Muddy creek to Waynesburg, from Rosemer and Charlestown. The next twelve months will be record-breaking in the coal and coke business and in the development of operations in Greene county."

DYING COKE PLANTS

Of Connellsville Region Lead Operators to Look to Greene County.

As an evidence of the rapidly changing coking coal conditions of the Connellsville region, says the Pittsburgh Post, it is pointed out that by careful estimates regarding the remaining unmined coal and ovens dependent upon that coal within one year 900 of these ovens will go out of blast for good, having exhausted their coal supply. Within two years more than 500 additional ovens will go out, and within the third year 1,400 and over will go out, so that within three years about 3,300 ovens will have exhausted their coal supply and thus reduce the annual tonnage of the region about 2,300,000 tons. There is only one compensating section left, namely, the Greene county field, and to its manufacturers are looking.

PIMPLES IN BLOTCHES ON FACE

Some on Neck, Hard Scab, Red and Sore, Face Hard to Shave, Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Cured of Pimples and Blackheads.

Bloomington, Pa.—"It was in July of 1909 when I started to feel something wrong on my neck and it got so sore that I was advised to have the hair treated. I did so but in about two weeks I began to break out with pimples, and later blackheads came. The pimples were in blotches all over my face and some places on my neck. They formed a hard scab and were always red and very sore, and made my face hard to shave. I treated some more thinking it would help me, but instead it made them worse. I also tried a salve and did not see one bit of good. Then I tried other things.

"After having spent enough money to buy a new face, I gave up. But one day I noticed the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used it and in about two weeks they soon began to help me and after using the treatment for about two months my face began to clear and I was cured of pimples and blackheads. I was troubled with them for three years before I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment." (Signed) Frank D. Emery, Dec. 26, 1911.

THE GREAT QUESTION. Mark viii, 27.—14.—Nov. 17. "These are the Christ, the Son of the Living God."—Matthew xvi, 16.

FOR a considerable period of His ministry our Lord did not declare Himself, even to His disciples, to be the Messiah. Truly, doubtless He chose the wisest course. He did, however, wish His disciples to know, and He approached the question by asking, "Who do men say that I am?" He got their reply. Then came the point of the question: "But who say ye that I am?" St. Peter answered, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." Jesus said, "Blessed art thou, Simon, son of Jonah, for flesh and blood hath not revealed this unto thee, but My Father which is in Heaven."

Forthwith Jesus began to explain to the beloved Twelve the experiences that lay before Him—and His death and resurrection. Doubtless all of the Apostles were disappointed, but only St. Peter had the courage to express himself, saying, "Be 'Thou art the Christ.'"

Lord, this shall not happen." In this course St. Peter was opposing the Divine will and Plan, of which the death of Jesus was the very center or hub. To make the matter very emphatic Jesus said to St. Peter, "Get thee behind Me, adversary, thy words savor not of the things of God, but of the things of men." Then He began to make clear to His followers what had not been "meat in due season" to tell them clearly before, namely, that whoever desired to be His disciple must first take up his cross and follow in the footsteps of the Redeemer. He who will faithfully lose his life for Jesus' sake will save it—it will gain the reward of life on the spirit plane.

"What Shall It Profit a Man?" God has provided a future life for every man through the Redemption accomplished by Jesus, but only the noble of heart, of character, of life, who will accept this great blessing through the Divinely appointed way, will get it. If they selfishly seek for the whole world, the selfishness thus developed will make them unfit for the eternal life. For what would a man take in exchange for the loss of his life? Would he consider wealth or fame or name for a few years in the present time worthy of sacrifice at present, if it were to cost him eternal glory, eternal life? Surely not. We are therefore to have in mind that character-building is absolutely essential to our attaining eternal life.

Whoever becomes a follower of the Lord and hopes to gain the prize of everlasting life and glory on the spirit plane must come out fully and courageously and acknowledge Jesus and His words. To be ashamed of the Truth, of the Divine Plan, of what we find to be the teachings of God's Word, because it is unpopular with men, is to offend the Lord and to prove ourselves unworthy of His favor.

The Great Question. The great question of eighteen centuries ago is the great question of today: Who is Jesus? If it is some claimant, who is merely a good man, a moral Teacher, then He was not the Christ, for the Christ, although the embodiment of all these qualities, was more, much more. To be the Christ, He must have been the Man Christ Jesus, who gave Himself a ransom price for all, to be testified in due time. (1 Timothy ii, 5, 6.) And that signifies that He must have been, not of ordinary birth, but extraordinary, born from above, because if born in the ordinary course of nature He would be like others of Adam's sons, subject to the sentence of death and hence unable to save either Himself or others. But if He was the Christ, the Son of God, who left the glory of the Father and was made flesh, that He might "taste death for every man," then we behold Him as the great Redeemer of the world, whose death was necessary as a ransom, or corresponding price, to secure the release of mankind from the death sentence and to make possible the resurrection of Adam and his race.

More than this, the word Christ signifies the Anointed. The Bible declares that the Anointed Lord shall be the Great King, Prophet and Priest, whose Kingdom shall last for a thousand years, and shall destroy sin and all who love sin, and lift up all humanity willing to return into harmony with God. This is who Jesus is, according to the Scriptures—the Messiah, And His present work is the gathering of a Bride class, to be His Joint-heir in His glorious Kingdom, which will be set up soon after the Elect Church shall have been completed by the glorious change of the First Resurrection.

What think ye of Messiah? What think ye of His invitation to become His associate in His glory and Kingdom? What think ye of the cost of self-denial, self-sacrifice? What think ye of the great reward?

MOLLY McDONALD

A TALE OF THE FRONTIER

By RANDALL PARRISH
Author of "Keith of the Border," "My Lady of Doubt," "My Lady of the South," etc., etc.

Illustrations by J. L. Barnes

These thoughts came swiftly, for his period of waiting proved to be but a short one. He heard the laughter and talk as the merry-makers came into the hotel from the dance hall, crowding the passageway, and thronging in to where the tables were set. Then a rattle of chairs, and the steady shutting of doors, and the steady coming forth. Occasionally he could distinguish a shadow out in the hall, but never changed his motionless posture, or removed his eyes from the aperture, until she slipped noiselessly through and stood there panting slightly, her hand clasping the knob of the door. Apparently in the semi-darkness of the room she was uncertain of his presence, while her white dress touched by the outside reflection made her clearly visible.

"It is all right, Miss McDonald," he murmured hastily, arising. "There is nothing to fear."

"You are here—alone?"

"Yes," smiling in memory. "There were occupants when I first arrived, but they were persuaded to depart. I had a suspicion you might prefer it that way."

"Yes," puzzled by his manner, yet softly pushing the door back so as to exclude the light. "I can see better now. Are you sure no one can overhear? I have something to tell you—something important."

"There is no one else here, yet some one might stumble into this room. It is not private, you know. We shall be safer on the porch outside. Will you take my hand, and let me guide you?"

She did so unhesitatingly, but her fingers were cold, and he could feel the twitching of her nerves.

"You are frightened—not of me, surely?"

"Oh, no!" a slight catch in her voice, "but I am running such a risk venturing here. I had to pretend a sick-headache to get away. You must not condemn me until you hear why I came."

"I condemn? Hardly, Miss McDonald. I am merely a soldier receiving orders: mine not to question why. Here is the window; now sit down on this bench. I'll keep guard, and listen." His voice sank lower, a little touch of tenderness in it impossible to disguise. "Are you in trouble? Is it something I can aid you to overcome?"

She did not answer at once but turned her chin in one hand, and turned her eyes away. Her breath came swiftly, as though she had not yet recovered from fright, and her face in the dim light looked white and drawn.

"Yes, you can," she began slowly. "I am sure you can. I came to you because there was no one else in whom I felt the same confidence. I know that sounds strange, but I cannot explain—only it seems natural to trust some people even when you do not know them very well. I do not suppose I know you very well; just those few hours we were together, but somehow I think you are true."

"I certainly hope so," he put in earnestly. "I couldn't very well help being—with you."

"I believe that," and she lifted her eyes to his face.

"Yet I do not wish you to think me bold, or—or indiscreet. You do not think so, do you?"

"That idea has never once occurred to me, Miss McDonald. I am only too glad to be of service."

"It is good of you to say that; you see, there was no one else."

"Your father?" he suggested.

"But that is the very trouble," she insisted, rejoicing that he had thus unconsciously opened the way to her confession. "It is because my father is involved, is completely in her toils, that I am compelled to appeal to you. He will not listen to a word against her."

"Her? You refer to Mrs. Dupont?"

"Of course; why, I hadn't mentioned her name! How did you guess?"

"Because I am not entirely ignorant of conditions," he answered soberly. "Although I have only been at the post a short time, I have managed to see and hear a good deal. You know I chanced to become involved in the shooting of Lieutenant Gaskins, and then I saw you, riding with Mrs. Dupont, and recognized her."

"Recognized?" in surprise. "Do you actually mean you knew her before?"

"Not as Mrs. Dupont, but as Vera Carson, years ago. She knew me at once, and sent your driver over to the barracks with a note."

"Why, how strange. She asked me so many questions, I wondered at the interest shown. Do you mind telling me what the note was about?"

"Not in the least. She referred to the past, and asked me to meet her."

"Were you—very intimate? Great friends?"

"We were engaged to be married," he acknowledged frankly, his eyes upon her face. "That was at the breaking out of the war, and I was in my senior college year. We met at school, and I was supposed to be the heir to large property. She is a beautiful woman now, and she was a beautiful girl then. I thought her as good and true as she was charming. Since then I have learned her selfishness and deceit, that it was my money which attracted her, and that she really loved another man, a classmate."

She glanced up at him as he paused, but he resumed the story without being interrupted.

"The war came, and I enlisted at once, and received a commission. Almost our entire class went, and the man who really loved was next below me in rank."

"Eugene Le Ferre?"

"Yes; how did you know? Oh, I told you of him out there in the sand hills. Well, I urged her to marry me before I went to the front, but she made excuses. Later, I understood the reason. She was uncertain as to my inheriting the property of an uncle. We were ordered to the Army of Northern Virginia. Once I went home on furlough, severely wounded. We were to be married then, but I had not sufficiently recovered when I was suddenly ordered back to the front. I did suspect then, for the first time, that she was glad of the respite. I afterwards discovered that during all this time she was in correspondence with Le Ferre, who had been detailed on Early's staff. It was his influence which brought about my sudden, unexpected recall to duty. A few months later I was promoted major, and, at Father's Hill, found myself commanding the regiment. Early in the action Le Ferre brought me an order; it was delivered verbally, the only other party present a corporal named Shultz, a German knowing little English. Early's exact words were: 'Advance at once across the creek, and engage the enemy fiercely; a supporting column will move immediately.' Desperate as the duty involved appeared, there was nothing in the order as given to arouse suspicion. In obedience I lunged my command forward, leading them on foot. We charged into a trap, and were nearly annihilated, and Shultz was either killed, or made prisoner. Two days later I was arrested under charges, was tried by court-martial, and dismissed from the service in disgrace. Early produced a copy of his written order; it read 'cautiously feel the enemy's position,' and Le Ferre went on the stand, and swore the original had been delivered to me. I had no witnesses."

"She watched him with wide-open eyes, her lips parted."

"The man laughed bitterly."

"Wrote him a letter, which the man actually had the nerve to show me when I was helpless, proving her faithfulness. I would not believe, and went back seeking her. But she had departed—no one knew where—but had first convinced herself that my name had been erased from my uncle's will. Two months later I heard that she married Le Ferre in Richmond."

"And she—that woman—actually asked you to meet her again tonight?"

"Yes."

"Did you?"

"I must plead guilty."

"Where?"

"Here; just where we are now; we were together half an hour."

"She half arose to her feet, her hand grasping the rail."

"But I cannot understand. Why should you? Do you?"

"No; wait," he interrupted, venturing to touch her arm. "I came, not because of any interest in her, Miss Molly—but for you."

"Molly Teller Her Story."

Her breath came in a little sob, and she sank back on the bench.

"For me? How do you mean?"

"Surely I had every reason to distrust her, to question her character, and I could not believe you realized the sort of woman she is. I felt it my duty to discover her purpose here, and to warn you if possible."

"And you have succeeded? You learned her purpose in your interview?"

"Not exactly," with regret. "My suspicion was merely stimulated. To tell the truth, we rather drifted into a renewal of our old quarrel. However, between what she said, and parts of another conversation overheard, I know there is a blackmailing conspiracy on foot in which you are involved. May I speak very frankly?"

"I certainly desire it," proudly. "I am not aware that I have anything to conceal."

"Apparently the scheme these people have on foot originated about Lieutenant Gaskins. He is wealthy, I understand."

"I have been told so; yes, I know he is."

"This knowledge, coupled with the fact of your engagement—"

"My what?"

"Your engagement. I had heard it rumored before, and Mrs. Dupont assured me it was true."

"But it is not true, Sergeant Hamilton—indignantly. 'I cannot imagine how such a report ever started. Lieutenant Gaskins has been very friendly; he has—' her voice breaking slightly, 'even asked me to marry him, but I told him that was impossible. He has been just as kind to me since, but there is nothing, absolutely nothing between us. I have never spoken about this before to any one.'

"If Hamilton's heart leaped wildly at this swift denial, there was no evidence of it in his quiet voice."

"The point is, Miss Molly, that Mrs. Dupont, and those connected with her, think otherwise. They are presuming on Gaskins' being in love with you. Mrs. Dupont can be very seductive. Little by little she has drawn the Lieutenant into her net. Believing him engaged to you, they have him now where he must either pay money for silence or be exposed. Just how it was worked, I do not know. The shooting last night was done to convince him they were serious. The fact that Gaskins later denied knowing who his assailants were—even endeavored to accuse me—is abundant proof of their success." He hesitated, wondering at her silence. "What puzzles me most is why you were present."

"I was present?"

"At this quarrel with Gaskins last evening. As I ran by toward the scene of the shooting I passed you hiding at the angle of the barnack wall. Of course I have mentioned the fact to no one. That was why I made no attempt to defend myself when arrested."

"She gasped for breath, scarcely able to articulate."

"You believe that? You think that of me?"

"I may have been deceived; I hope so; there was but little light, and I got merely a glimpse," he explained hastily.

"You were deceived?"

"I was not out of the house that evening. I was in the parlor with my father when those shots were fired. You are sure you saw a woman there—hiding?"

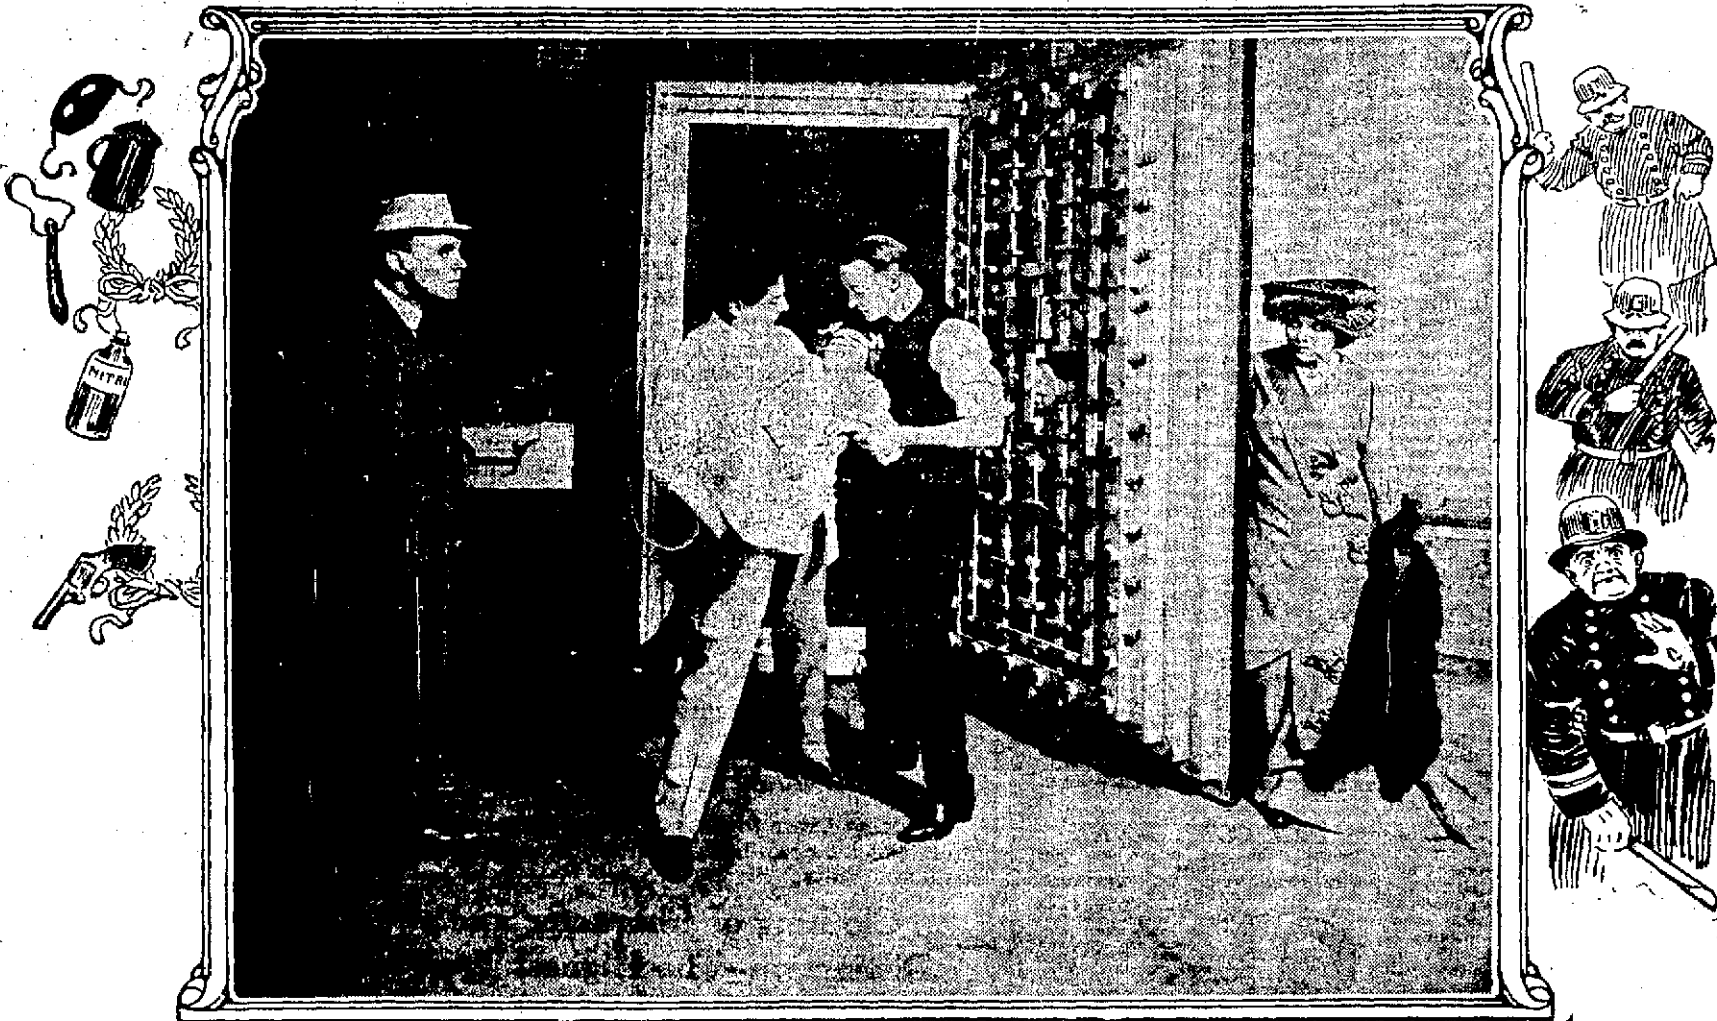

"There is no doubt of that; her footprints were plainly to be seen in the morning. This discovery, together with the story of the weapon used, resulted in my immediate release. I saw her, and imagined her to be you. I cannot account for the mistake, unless you were in my mind, and possibly what I had heard of your connection with Gaskins. Then it must have been Mrs. Dupont. That looks reasonable. But she stays at your home, does she not?"

"She makes our house her headquarters, but is absent occasionally. Last night she was here at this hotel. Well, we are getting this straightened out a little—that is, if you believe me."

"Of course."

"Then I am going to question you. You spoke of overhearing a conversation?"

"Yes; it was after Mrs. Dupont had left. Captain Barrett came, and took her away. I was sitting here thinking when two men came into the parlor."

"Who were they? Do you know?"

"One was the soldier who drives you about—Connors; the other a black-bearded, burly fellow called 'Reb.'"

"Mr. Dupont?"

"What? Is that Dupont? Lord! No wonder she's gone bad. Why, I thought her husband was a ranchman down south somewhere! This fellow is a lionhorn."

"He did not run cattle once, years ago. I think he was quite well off but drank and gambled it away. Papa told me all about it, but I found out he was the man by accident. He is the one I am really afraid of."

"She stopped, her eyes deserting his face, and stared out into the darkness. He waited, feeling vaguely that he had not heard all she intended to say."

"What more do you know?" he asked. "What was it you expected of me?"

"She turned again, aroused by the question."

"Yes, I must tell you as quickly as I can before I am missed. I did not know about Mrs. Dupont and Lieutenant Gaskins. I realized there was something between them—a slight flirtation, but scarcely gave that a thought. What brought me here was a much more serious matter, yet this new information helps me to comprehend the other—the motives, I mean. Mrs. Dupont's maiden name was Vera Carson."

"Certainly; I knew her family well."

"She came here, and was received into our family as a daughter of my father's sister. If true, her maiden name would have been Sarah Counts. Papa had no reason to suspect the deceit. He does not now, and I doubt if even your word would convince him, for he seems thoroughly under her influence. There has been such a change in him since she came; not all at once, you know, but gradual, until now he scarcely seems like the same man. I—I do not dislike Lieutenant Gaskins; he has been pleasant and attentive, but I do not care for him in any other way. Yet papa insists that I marry the man. Lately he has been very unkind about it, and—and I am sure she is urging him on. What can I do? It is all so unpleasant."

Hamilton shook his head, but without reply.

"You will not tell me? Then I will tell you I shall say no! no! in spite of them; I shall refuse to be sold. But how does that woman control my father?" she leaned closer in her earnestness, lowering her voice.

"She has not won him by charms; he is afraid of her."

"Afraid? Are you certain of that?"

"Yes. I cannot tell you how I know; perhaps it is all womanly instinct, but I do know that he is terrified; that he dare not oppose her wish. I have read the truth in his eyes, and I am sure he is harsh to me only because he is driven by some threat, what can it be?"

"You have never spoken to him of your suspicions? Asked him?"

"Yes and no. I tried once, and shall never forget the expression of his face. Then he turned on me in a perfect paroxysm of anger. I never even dared hint at the matter again."

"The Sergeant started out into the street, not knowing what to say, or how to advise. Almost unconscious of the action his hand stole along the rail until it touched hers."

"If the woman has not enervated him by her usual methods," he said soberly, "and I think myself you are right about that, for I watched them together in the dance hall—I did not comprehend what it meant then, but it seemed to me he actually disliked being in her company—then she has uncovered something in his past of which he is afraid, something unknown to you, which he does not desire you ever to know."

"Yes," softly, "that must be true."

"No; it may not be true; it may all be a lie, concocted for a purpose. A clever woman might so manipulate circumstances as to convince him she held his fate in her hands. We must find that out in this case."

"But how, Sergeant Hamilton? He will not tell me."

"Perhaps she will tell me if I can reach her alone," he said grimly, "or else that husband of hers—Dupont. He'll know the whole story. It would give me pleasure to choke it out of him—real pleasure. Then there's Connors, just the sort of sneaking rat if he can be caught with the goods; only it is not likely he knows much. I shall have to think it all out, Miss Molly," he smiled at her confidently. "You see, I am a bit slow figuring puzzles, but I generally get them in time. You've told me all you know?"

THE SOISSON.

"THE SPRING MAID" TONIGHT.

Not often does an opera receive the stamp of emphatic approval on its first visit and come back for a return engagement showing even greater perfection. Like champagne, "The Spring Maid," that appears at the Soisson theatre tonight, had the bubble and tang of wine last season and this year critics everywhere have declared that like vintage wine it shows even more delightful qualities as time goes on. There is a reason for this. Werba and Luescher, its producers, retained nearly the entire organization which presented "The Spring Maid" last season, with Gene Lameska and J. H. Goldworthy and the splendid cast which proved so notable wherever the opera was sung. A few changes among the principals and scarcely any among the chorus in improvement.

Mellowed by constant work and spurred on by the success which met the opera everywhere, the big company became imbued with that spirit called "team work." The pride of even the most unimportant chorister in the success of the organization soon showed in perfect performances. The spirit of the opera itself, with its duty love-story and swinging and alluring score finds a reflection in the work of the singers. Werba and Luescher declare that the present company is the best "Spring Maid" organization they have ever had.

NEIL O'BRIEN'S MINSTRELS.

The Soisson Theatre announces as its attraction on Wednesday, November 20, Neil O'Brien and his "American Minstrels," a new organization of burnt-cork celebrities which has already attracted much favorable attention. Its star, Neil O'Brien, and in fact all the principal performers surrounding him, have long been prime favorites with audiences.

For years, Mr. O'Brien has been identified with the success of Levv Doukstadter, in which organization he was the chief factor in winning the greater portion of its success and fame. At the head of his own company, Mr. O'Brien can now produce and develop ideas which have long been his pet theories regarding minstrel production. Always fitting, his calling with dignity added to sincere, earnest and able effort, no performer on the minstrel stage would appear more capable of the task of bringing back minstrelsy to its old-time vigor and fame.

The supporting company includes Eddie Mazier, William H. Hallett, Jack McHane, Peter Detzel, Al Fontaine, Doran and Stron, Charles E. Wheeler, Major Nowak, and a score of others as well and favorably known, in addition to a big singing and dancing chorus and an orchestra of 13.

THE COLONIAL.

"ALIAS JIMMY VALENTINE."

The expert advice and testimony of a professional bank robber is responsible for one of the most important changes in the "business" entrusted to George Irving, who plays the title role in "Alias Jimmy Valentine." The bank robber occupied a seat in the parquer of the Hudsonian theatre, Chicago, when the play was given its first presentation. When the scene where Valentine "feels out" the combination of the safe was reached, naturally, the professional crook was alert and on the lookout for flaws in the staging.

According to an anonymous letter received by the manager of the company next day, he found them. He related in his letter that he would have Irving feel out the combination with his left hand instead of his right as the skin is always thickest on the fingers of the right hand and the nerves are less sensitive to outside impulses. His greatest objection was in the matter of pulling down the blinds in the vault scene. He said that if the blinds were pulled down people from the outside might observe a change from the usual order of things and that in order to satisfy his desire to work in the dark in order to better feel the combination, Mr. Irving should cover his eyes with a handkerchief and let the window curtains alone.

After the receipt of the crook's letter the stage manager acted on his suggestions and visitors to the Colonial Theatre this afternoon and tonight, where "Alias Jimmy Valentine" is due may see Irving "feeling out" the combination with his left hand, and a heavy handkerchief across his eyes for the final big scene of the play.
